

Changes in Roche Shareholder Pool

The majority of the direct descendants of company founder Fritz Hoffmann-La Roche have decided to continue the shareholder pooling agreement existing since 1948 with a modified shareholder composition. A charitable foundation established by pool members has been admitted to the pool. Maja Oeri has decided to leave the pool. The pool therefore now has 45,01 % of the votes in Roche but will ensure continuity through its dominant position as the largest shareholder on a long term view.

The shareholder pooling agreement which has existed since 1948 between the direct descendants of company founder Fritz Hoffmann-La Roche was renewed in 2009 with a changed shareholder composition. The majority of family members have now decided to continue the pooling agreement with a slightly modified composition. On the one hand, a charitable foundation established by several pool members has been admitted to the pool, thereby documenting the long-term nature of the family's association with the company.

On the other hand, Maja Oeri has decided to leave the pool. Maja Oeri will exercise her shareholder rights independently. As a result, the pool will in future consist of: Vera Michalski-Hoffmann, Maja Hoffmann, André Hoffmann, Andreas Oeri, Sabine Duschmalé-Oeri, Catherine Oeri, Jörg Duschmalé, Lukas Duschmalé and now also the charitable foundation Wolf.

The shareholder group with linked voting rights now holds 72'018'000 shares in the pool, corresponding to 45,01% of the bearer shares issued. Even though it no longer holds a voting majority, the pool remains by far the most significant shareholder. It remains committed in the long term to the overall interests of the company with headquarters in Basel and to this company's independence. Maja Oeri, as a major individual shareholder with 5 % of the voting rights, also continues to share this view.

Basel, 24 March 2011

The pool members

Maja Oeri

Any media enquiries must be addressed exclusively to Dr Bruno Dallo, CEO of Scobag Privatbank AG, Gartenstrasse 56, CH-4010 Basel, tel. +41(61) 205 12 12.